

Liberal Arts College
Public Lecture

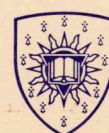

Eve's Journey : Female Images in the Bible

Nehama Aschkenasy
University of Connecticut

Professor Nehama Aschkenasy is founder and Director of the Judaic Studies Program in Middle Eastern Affairs at the University of Connecticut at Stamford. She holds degrees from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and a Ph.D in Comparative Literature from New York University. Her book, Eve's Journey: Feminine Images in Hebraic Literary Tradition, has been recognized as the most comprehensive and authoritative study on the topics and issues of sexual politics in the Bible and the Judaic Literary Tradition, and it received the Present Tense literary award as the best book in religious thought for 1987. Dr. Aschkenasy also published Biblical Patterns in Modern Literature, Brown University; her new book, War and Siege: Reflections on Israel's Geopolitics and Society will be published by SUNY Press in 1991. She has contributed numerous essays in Judaic Studies and Women's Studies to prestigious publications such as Modern Language Studies, Midstream, Lilith, Tradition and Prooftexts.

Date: Thursday, 22 November 1990
Time: 8:30 p.m.
Place: H-110, Hall Building
1455 de Maisonneuve Blvd. W.
Sir George Williams Campus
Telephone: 848-2565

Concordia
UNIVERSITY